

Dear friends, neighbors and allies,

Hudson Green Valley is hosting a night of films, discussion, and story sharing as part of the YOU ARE HERE tour at SUNY Orange (Orange County Community College), Rowley Center Forum Room #010, on Thursday, September 29th, at 7:00pm. Co-sponsored by TriStates Unite for Safe Energy, Protect Orange County, Sustainable Warwick, Sane Energy Project, and Working Films.

You're invited to this event, which will feature five short films focused on gas and oil infrastructure, public health concerns, policy, and ways that communities are responding. In Orange County NY and the NJ and PA region around it, people are working to prevent the construction of the Mega-Giant fracked gas-generated power plant, CPV Valley, in Slate Hill. People are also working to stop the Valley Lateral Pipeline that would feed it, destroying farms and wetlands. We are working to close the Minisink Compressor Station in Westtown, and we are fighting to end the fracking itself, which poisons the wells, the land, and the air of PA.

This tour is named after Sane Energy Project's YOU ARE HERE map, which allows users to see the shale gas network across the state and zoom in on their own region. The map explains the current status of each project, and enables visitors to connect with the local group that is organizing to stop it. This year they are partnering with Fractracker to transform it into a "story-map," complete with scrolling chapters of images of residents sharing their personal stories. Kim Fraczek and Patrick Robbins with Sane Energy Project will be at the events to collect these stories and we hope to get you on the map!

So come learn about the issues, watch great films, talk with your neighbors, and find out how you can help protect your community. We look forward to seeing you there!
